

David Livingstone lived in the little town of Blantyre, in Scotland. He often went exploring in order to find out about animals and plants and other interesting things.

David was very hard working and had to work all day in the local mill. He was clever too as he read books whenever he could. David was also brave. One time, he jumped into the river to save a little boy who was drowning.

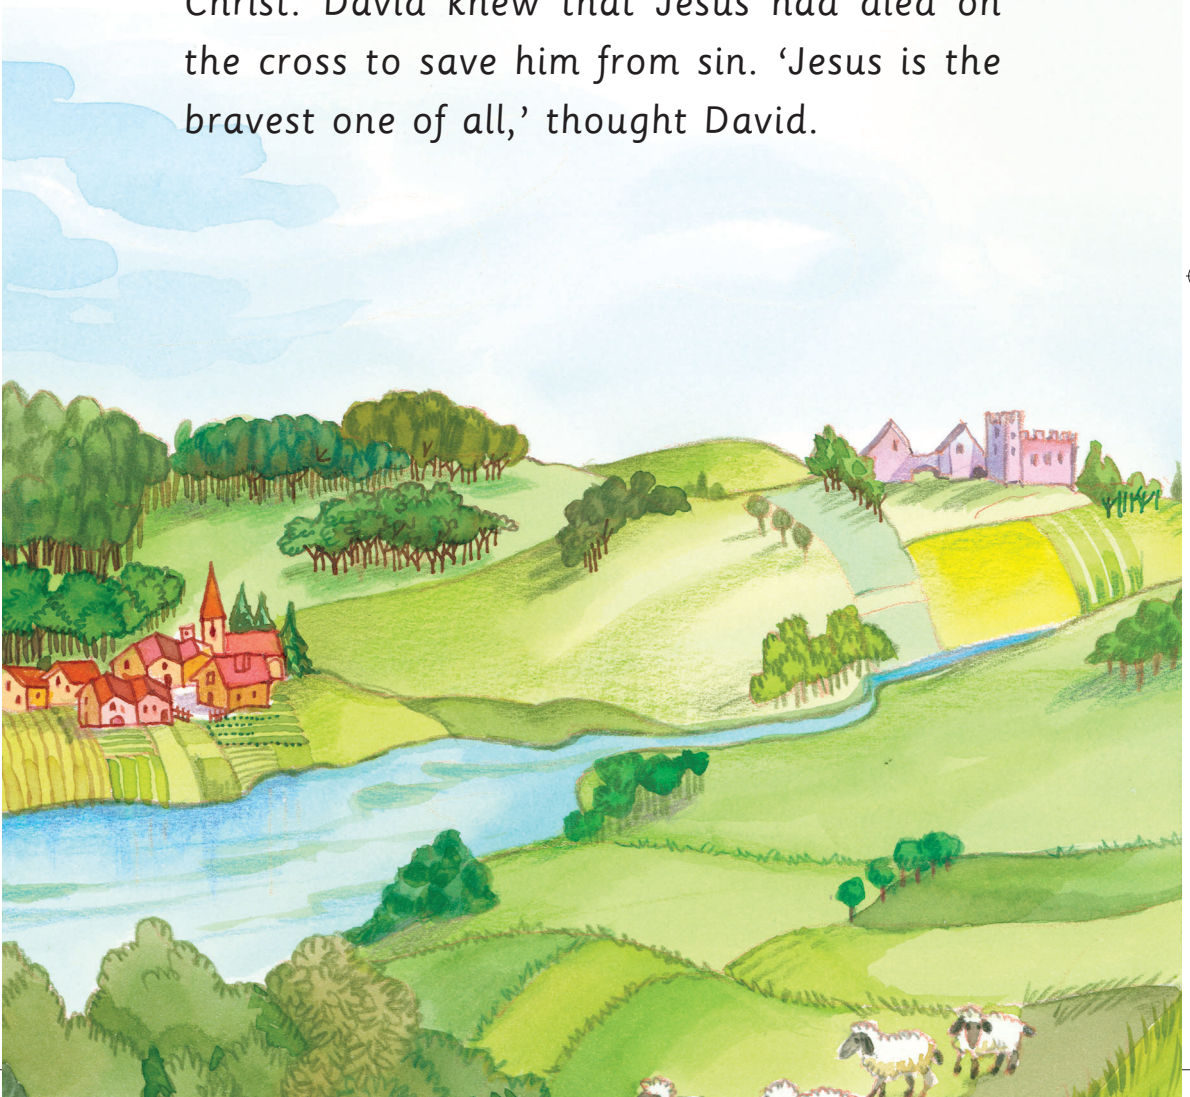

David was also brave.

But David did not always feel happy. He wanted to have peace with God and didn't know how to get it. Then one day David realised that God loved him. God would forgive David for the wrong things he had done, if David trusted in God's Son, Jesus Christ. David knew that Jesus had died on the cross to save him from sin. 'Jesus is the bravest one of all,' thought David.

David realised that God loved him.
